A radiology information system that stores, manages and distributes patient radiology information

Merge RIS

You want a radiology information system (RIS) to streamline your front office workflow and give you tools to connect with referring physicians and patients. But a RIS can be more than that — it can also empower you to remain compliant with changing market demands, contain costs, capture new revenue streams and deliver to the needs of the consumer.

Merge RIS can power both lean and complex IT organizations, efficiently streamlining workflows and supporting revenue growth.

How we help you

Merge RIS™ can power both lean and complex IT organizations with fully integrated workflows and enhanced functionality. It can help you accomplish your revenue and productivity goals by building a customized workflow solution that optimizes your business, from orders and reports, to billing and analytics. Merge RIS helps position you to meet new mandates while streamlining workflows, improving productivity and building solid relationships with your referring physicians, market partners and patients.

Merge RIS can help you...

Manage the business of radiology

- Promote patient self-scheduling to find new ways to control costs and shift resources
- Reduce time spent on manual entry of the scheduling process while increasing communication between patient and providers
- Adhere to CMS dose mandates efficiently by giving clients the ability to capture dose type, vial amount, units, dose administered, dose wasted, vials used, and dosage time

Lead the way toward a leaner business

- Collaborate seamlessly across multiple organizations and clinical specialties that may be located in multiple states
- Improve resource utilization with automated appointment waitlist tools to reduce backlog, minimize the threat of lost revenue from appointment changes and reduce unfilled appointments
- Protect your staff from burnout and conserve their time with Predictive Smart Scheduling and Habitual No Show appointment management for faster scheduling efforts
- Reduce time spent on manual entry and switching back and forth between Merge RIS and MDM with an Enhanced Order Workflow

Build stronger relationships

- Expand your organization's ability to find new referral streams and maintain existing loyalties
- Improve outpatient access and provide 24/7 availability to online scheduling with digital tools, including remote pre-registration, mobile check-in and appointment confirmation
